(1) Trafficking in persons continues to victimize countless men, women, and children in the United States and abroad.

(2) Since the enactment of the Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000 (division A of Public Law 106–386), the United States Government has made significant progress in investigating and prosecuting acts of trafficking and in responding to the needs of victims of trafficking in the United States and abroad.

(3) On the other hand, victims of trafficking have faced unintended obstacles in the process of securing needed assistance, including admission to the United States under section 101(a)(15)(T)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

(4) Additional research is needed to fully understand the phenomenon of trafficking in persons and to determine the most effective strategies for combating trafficking in persons.

(5) Corruption among foreign law enforcement authorities continues to undermine the efforts by governments to investigate, prosecute, and convict traffickers.

(6) International Law Enforcement Academies should be more fully utilized in the effort to train law enforcement authorities, prosecutors, and members of the judiciary to address trafficking in persons-related crimes.

PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

The purpose of H.R. 2620, the Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2003, is to amend and reauthorize appropriations for fiscal years 2004 and 2005 for the Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000 (TVPA), P.L. 106–386.

In the 3 years since enactment of the TVPA the United States Government has developed a better understanding of the phenomena of trafficking in persons and the Committee has been able to evaluate U.S. experience under the act and identify areas for improvements and modifications to the act. Based on this experience, H.R. 2620 strengthens the U.S. Government’s ability to combat the worldwide scourge of trafficking in persons by enhancing provisions on prevention of trafficking, protection of victims of trafficking, and prosecution of traffickers.

H.R. 2620 includes new initiatives and modifications to current law with respect to the following items: establishing border interdiction programs, international media programs, and travel initiatives; and authority to terminate U.S. Government funding to private entities that engage in various human trafficking related activities (Sec. 3); assistance to family members of trafficked victims, slight modifications to the eligibility for a “T” visa established by the TVPA, and a private right of action in Federal courts for trafficking victims (Sec. 4); clarification of jurisdiction in human trafficking cases, and classification of human trafficking-related offenses as actionable under Federal racketeering statutes (Sec. 5); establishing a comprehensive reporting requirement for the Interagency Task Force to Monitor and Combat Trafficking regarding implementation of Federal trafficking in persons programs and initiatives, elevating the Director of the Office to Monitor and Combat Trafficking to the rank of Ambassador-at-Large, establishing a Senior Policy Operating Group to assist the Task Force in coordinating activities of Federal departments and agencies involved in trafficking in persons programs and initiatives, clarifying the minimum standards for the elimination of trafficking by adding that evidence of convictions and sentencing for acts of trafficking be considered when evaluating a country's efforts to eliminate trafficking, shifting the burden of proof to countries to provide data on arrests, prosecutions, convictions, and sentencing, and requiring specialized research in the area of human trafficking (Sec. 6); authorizing appropriations for each of fiscal years 2004 and 2005, and creating prohibitions on the use of funds to promote, support, or advocate the legalization or practice of prostitution, as well as to require an organization receiving funds to indicate that the organization does not promote, support, or advocate the legalization or practice of prostitution (Sec. 7).

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR THE LEGISLATION

The Trafficking Victims Protection Act was enacted in October 2000 to combat trafficking in persons, ensure the prosecution of traffickers of children, women and men, and to protect the victims of trafficking. The TVPA was amended and funding was reauthorized in the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Year 2003, P.L. 107-228.

On June 26, 2003, Representatives Christopher Smith, Tom Lantos, Joseph Pitts and Louise McIntosh Slaughter introduced H.R. 2620, the Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2003. The new legislation is based on 3 years of experience in implementing the TVPA and a review of the effectiveness of the measures in the TVPA. H.R. 2620 also draws from the international conference on Pathbreaking Strategies in the Global Fight Against Sex Trafficking, convened by the U.S. Department of State on February 23-26, 2003. The bill strengthens U.S. Government efforts to combat trafficking in persons through enhanced provisions on the prevention of trafficking in persons, prosecution of traffickers, and protection of trafficked victims.

On June 25, 2003, the Subcommittee on International Terrorism, Nonproliferation and Human Rights held a hearing on "Global Trends in Trafficking and the Trafficking in Persons Report." Testimony was received from the following witnesses: Mr. John Miller, Senior Advisor to the Secretary and Director of the Office to Monitor and Combat Trafficking in Persons at the U.S. Department of State; Rev. Luran Bethell, International Baptist Theological Seminary of the European Baptist Federation; Ms. Holly Burkhalter, U.S. Policy Director of Physicians for Human Rights; Mr. Gary A. Haugen, President, CEO and Founder of the International Justice Mission; Dr. Mohamed Y. Mattar, Co-Director of the Protection Project at Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies; Ms. Nancy Murphy, Executive Director of the Northwest Family Life Center; and Dr. Louise I. Shelley, Director of the Transnational Crime and Corruption Center at American University.

The Committee notes that much of the public attention on the issue of trafficking in persons focuses on sex trafficking, and indeed many of the most dramatic and horrifying accounts come from women and children forced into the sex trade. However, the Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000 addressed both sex slavery and forced labor and, as reflected in several prosecutions pursued by the Department of Justice since enactment of the act, individuals subject to forced labor also face terrible human rights abuses. The Committee remains seized of all severe forms of trafficking in persons, as defined in the act.

COMMITTEE CONSIDERATION

The Committee on International Relations marked up the bill in open session, pursuant to notice, on July 23, 2003. The Committee ordered favorably reported the bill H.R. 2620 with an amendment in the nature of a substitute by voice vote, a quorum being present.

VOTES OF THE COMMITTEE

No recorded votes were taken during the consideration of H.R. 2620.

COMMITTEE OVERSIGHT FINDINGS

In compliance with clause 3(c)(1) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee reports that the findings and recommendations of the Committee, based on oversight activities under clause 2(b)(1) of rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives, are incorporated in the descriptive portions of this report.

NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY AND TAX EXPENDITURES

Clause 3(c)(2) of House Rule XIII is inapplicable because this legislation does not provide new budgetary authority or increased tax expenditures.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE

In compliance with clause 3(c)(3) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee sets forth, with respect to the bill, H.R. 2620, the following estimate and comparison prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974:

H.R. 2620—Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2003.

SUMMARY

H.R. 2620 would reauthorize several programs within the Departments of State, Labor, Justice, and Health and Human Services, and within other agencies that combat trafficking in persons. It would expand the current federal prohibitions against such trafficking and would make more victims of trafficking and their relatives eligible to enter and remain in the United States.

The bill would authorize appropriations of almost $106 million a year in 2004 and 2005. CBO estimates that implementing the bill would cost $197 million over the 2004–2008 period, assuming appropriation of the authorized amounts. The bill also contains provisions that would affect direct spending and revenues, but CBO estimates these provisions would not have a significant effect.

H.R. 2620 would impose a private-sector mandate, as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) on airlines organized under the laws of the United States and other airlines that operate in the United States. CBO expects that the direct costs of the mandate would fall well below the annual threshold established by UMRA ($117 million in 2003, adjusted annually for inflation). H.R. 2620 contains no intergovernmental mandates as defined in UMRA and would impose no significant costs on state, local, or tribal governments.

ESTIMATED COST TO THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

The estimated budgetary impact of H.R. 2620 is shown in the following table. The costs of this legislation fall within budget functions 150 (international affairs), 500 (education, employment, training, and social services), 550 (health), 600 (income security), and 750 (administration of justice).

The bill would authorize appropriations of about $106 million a year in 2004 and 2005 for various programs to combat trafficking in persons. This compares to less than $60 million in funding for similar programs in 2003, not counting spending by the Department of Labor that may benefit individual victims of trafficking under more general authority. Assuming that H.R. 2620 will be enacted late in fiscal year 2003, that the amounts authorized are appropriated near the start of each fiscal year, and that outlays follow historical spending patterns, CBO estimates that implementing the bill would cost $21 million in 2004 and $197 million over the 2004–2008 period.

Overseas Assistance. The bill would authorize appropriations in 2004 and 2005 of $30 million a year to the Secretary of State and $30 million a year to the President for programs to prevent trafficking in persons, to protect victims of trafficking, and to assist foreign states in meeting minimum standards for the elimination of trafficking. In addition, the bill would authorize $0.3 million a year in 2004 and 2005 for voluntary contributions to international organizations to prevent such trafficking and assist in related legal reform, $0.25 million a year in 2004 and 2005 for training at the International Law Enforcement Academies, and $0.3 million a year in 2004 and 2005 for research on domestic and international trafficking in persons. CBO estimates that implementing these provisions would cost $8 million in 2004 and $108 million over the 2004–2008 period.

Department of Health and Human Services. The bill also would authorize appropriations of $15 million in 2004 and 2005 for refugee assistance to trafficking victims. Under current law, the department plans to spend $10 million for these activities in 2003. Assuming appropriation of the authorized amounts and that spending from the authorized amounts would be similar to the larger refugee assistance programs administered by the department, CBO estimates that this assistance would cost $5 million in 2004 and $29 million over the 2004–2008 period.

Department of Justice. Section 7 would authorize appropriations of $15 million a year in 2004 and 2005 for the Attorney General to provide assistance to victims of trafficking living in the United States. CBO estimates that implementing this section would cost $30 million over the 2004–2008 period, assuming appropriation of the authorized amounts.

Department of Labor. H.R. 2620 would authorize appropriations of $10 million in 2004 and 2005 for services to trafficking victims. Services for these refugees are currently provided through the Employment and Training Administration, and CBO assumes that spending from the authorized amounts would be similar to those employment and training programs. Assuming appropriation of the authorized amounts, CBO estimates that providing these services would cost $500,000 in 2004 and $20 million over the 2004–2008 period.

Department of State. Section 7 would authorize appropriations of $5 million each year in 2004 and 2005 to the State Department for the expenses of monitoring, combating, and reporting on trafficking in persons. Assuming appropriation of the authorized amounts, CBO estimates that implementing this section would cost $10 million over the 2004–2008 period.

Direct Spending and Revenues

Enacting H.R. 2620 also could affect direct spending and revenues; but CBO estimates that any such changes would not be significant.

Medicaid and Other Entitlement Benefits. Certifications under the Trafficking Victims Protection Act have averaged fewer than 15 individuals a month since the program began early in fiscal year 2001. Only a minority of persons certified in 2001 applied for benefits in that year—the only year for which these data are available—and fewer still actually received Medicaid, Food Stamps, or other entitlement benefits. Although the provisions in H.R. 2620 could increase the number of individuals applying for and becoming entitled to certain federal public benefits, CBO expects the changes would result in few new beneficiaries for these benefits. Thus, CBO estimates that under H.R. 2620 any increase in direct spending for these benefit programs would not be significant.

Immigration Status for Certain Victims. The bill would make it easier for more victims of trafficking and their relatives to enter and remain in the United States. Costs to the Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services for adjudicating such cases would be funded from fees collected by the agency. CBO estimates that any such costs would not be significant because of the relatively small number of trafficking victims likely to be involved.

Civil and Criminal Fines. The bill would expand the current federal crimes relating to trafficking in persons. Because those prosecuted and convicted under the bill could be subject to civil and criminal fines, the government might collect additional fines if the bill is enacted. Collections of civil fines are recorded in the budget as governmental receipts (revenues) and are deposited in the general fund. Collections of criminal fines are recorded as receipts and are deposited in the Crime Victims Fund and later spent. CBO expects that any additional receipts and direct spending would not be significant.

ESTIMATED IMPACT ON STATE, LOCAL, AND TRIBAL GOVERNMENTS

H.R. 2620 contains no intergovernmental mandates as defined in UMRA and would impose no significant costs on state, local, or tribal governments.

ESTIMATED IMPACT ON THE PRIVATE SECTOR

H.R. 2620 would impose a new private-sector mandate, as defined in UMRA, on airlines organized under the laws of the United States and other airlines that operate in the United States. The bill would require such airlines to develop and disseminate materials alerting travelers that sex tourism, as defined in the bill, is illegal, will be prosecuted, and presents dangers to those involved. Based on information from industry and government sources, CBO expects that the direct costs of the mandate would fall well below the annual threshold established by UMRA ($117 million in 2003, adjusted annually for inflation).

PERFORMANCE GOALS AND OBJECTIVES

H. R. 2620 will strengthen U.S. Government efforts to combat trafficking in persons through enhanced provisions on the prevention of trafficking in persons, prosecution of traffickers, and protection of trafficked victims. It will increase the provision of public benefits, lead to a more fair approach to visa adjudication of the “T” visa category, and will create the possibility of organized crime prosecutions being brought against traffickers.

CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY STATEMENT

Pursuant to clause 3(d)(1) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee finds the authority for this legislation in article I, section 8 of the Constitution.

PREEMPTION CLARIFICATION

Section 423 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 requires the report of any committee on a bill or joint resolution to include a committee statement on the extent to which the bill or joint resolution is intended to preempt State or local law. The Committee states that H.R. 2620 is not intended to preempt any State or local law.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS AND DISCUSSION

Section 1. Short Title

This section states that this act may be cited as the “Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorizat~~on~~ Act of 2003.”

Section 2. Findings

This section states the Congress’ findings that trafficking in persons continues to victimize countless men, women, and children in the United States and abroad. Since the enactment of the Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000 (division A of Public Law 106–386), the United States Government has made significant progress in investigating and prosecuting acts of trafficking and in responding to the needs of victims of trafficking in the United States and abroad. Nonetheless, victims of trafficking have faced unintended obstacles in the process of securing needed assistance, including admission to the United States under section 101(a)(15)(T)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act. Additional research is needed to fully understand the phenomenon of trafficking in persons and to determine the most effective strategies for combating trafficking in persons. Corruption among foreign law enforcement authorities continues to undermine the efforts by governments to investigate, prosecute, and convict traffickers and the International Law Enforcement Academies should be more fully utilized in the effort to train law enforcement authorities, prosecutors, and members of the judiciary to address trafficking in persons-related crimes.

Section 3. Enhancing Prevention of Trafficking in Persons

This section amends section 106 of the Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000 by requiring the President to undertake specific initiatives to enhance the prevention of trafficking in persons.

Subsection (a) requires the President to initiate a new foreign assistance program in the form of border interdiction programs at key border crossings between foreign countries through grants to nongovernmental organizations. Such programs should provide transit shelters at borders and should include training survivors of trafficking to educate and train border guards and officials, and other local law enforcement officials to identify traffickers and victims of severe forms of trafficking, and the appropriate manner in which to treat such victims. In addition, under appropriate circumstances, such programs should provide for survivors of trafficking to monitor the implementation of border interdiction programs, including helping officials with the identification of trafficking victims. Any program established under this subsection must provide the opportunity for any trafficking victim who is freed to return to his or her previous residence if the victim so chooses.

Trafficking can be made more difficult by blocking key border crossings and establishing a program whereby victims educate and train and, where appropriate, work with local law enforcement to identify traffickers and their victims.

Subsection (a) also requires the President to support the production of television and radio programs, including documentaries, to inform vulnerable populations overseas of the dangers of trafficking, and to increase awareness of the public in countries of destination regarding the slave-like practices and other human rights abuses involved in trafficking. Explicit mention of the public as potential audiences for anti-trafficking awareness-raising efforts in countries of destination for trafficked persons is intended to signal the need for trafficking awareness-raising programs that target the demand-side of the trafficking equation. Programs created under this section should also foster linkages between individuals working in the media in different countries.

Subsection (a) also seeks to discourage U.S. citizens and others in the United States from creating a demand for trafficking through sex tourism. This section charges the President to require that airlines organized under the laws of the United States and other airlines operating in the United States develop and disseminate materials alerting travelers that sex tourism, as defined by 18 U.S.C. section 2423 (b–e), is illegal, will be prosecuted, and presents dangers to those involved. By giving the President the authority to promulgate regulations the Committee intends for the President to have flexibility to apply this requirement to particular flights and routes implicated as destinations for sex tourism. The provision also encourages affected airlines to work with nongovernmental organizations in developing materials for this purpose, such as brochures, public service announcements, and billboards.

Subsection (b) addresses the complicity of U.S. Government contractors with trafficking-in-persons offenses. During an April 2002 hearing, the Committee heard testimony describing the involvement by some employees or agents of DynCorp International—a recipient of a U.S. Government contract for police work in Bosnia-Herzegovina—in prostitution, human trafficking, and sexual misconduct and of DynCorp's retaliation against those who endeavored to bring such misconduct to light. The Committee intends for the Department of State and all other relevant government agencies to take necessary action to control the activities of such contractors who are essentially serving as representatives of the United States and often are perceived as such. It is the view of the Committee that contractors, their employees and agents, must be held accountable to a code of conduct with associated consequences for unethical or improper personal conduct while under U.S. Government contracts. This need is made all the more essential when such contractors are operating in areas where they are unlikely to be held accountable under local laws. H.R. 2620 ensures that trafficking will be a matter of discussion between U.S. Government agencies and private entities, such as DynCorp, which receive U.S. Government-funded grants, contracts, or cooperative agreements related to international affairs. This section requires that grants, contracts or cooperative agreements must contain a clause allowing the U.S. Government to terminate the grant, contract or cooperative agreement if the grantee, subgrantee, contractor or subcontractor (a) engages in severe forms of trafficking in persons or procures a commercial sex act while the grant, contract, or cooperative agreement is in effect, or (b) uses forced labor in the performance of the grant, contract, or cooperative agreement.

Section 4. Enhancing Protection for Trafficking Victims

Subsection (a) amends the Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000 to provide additional provisions for the protection of trafficking victims.

Subsection (a)(1) amends section 107(a)(1) of the TVPA, as previously amended by the Foreign Relations Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2003, P.L. 107–228, by suggesting that U.S. Government-sponsored initiatives for the protection and assistance of victims of trafficking in other countries should include efforts to promote contact between foreign government agencies and nongovernmental organizations in order to improve public-private cooperation in foreign countries on issues of trafficking victim assistance.

Subsection (a)(2) amends section 107(b)(1), to authorize that the same benefits and services available to a trafficking victim under that section should also be made available to such family members of the victim as may be admitted to the United States under the derivative “T” visa categories. The TVPA states that benefits and services should be available to victims of trafficking to the same extent as refugees. However, unlike the treatment of refugees, the express language of the TVPA provides only for the provision of benefits and services to the trafficking victim and not to derivative family members who join the trafficking victim in the United States pursuant to section 101(a)(15)(T)(ii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act. Such family members may be hindered in finding employment in the United States due to their inability to speak English or a lack of job skills appropriate to the U.S. labor market. In order to support their integration into U.S. society, it is the Committee’s intention that such family members should be provided with public benefits and services to the same extent as aliens admitted as refugees under sections 207 and 208 of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Subsection (a)(3) amends section 107(b)(1)(E)(i)(I) of the TVPA to clarify that in determining the eligibility of victims of trafficking to receive benefits and services afforded to them under the TVPA, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall consider a trafficking victim’s willingness to assist with any Federal, State or local law enforcement investigation or prosecution of severe forms of trafficking in persons. Many trafficking-related crimes are pursued at the State and local levels through the prosecution of such crimes as kidnaping, rape, slavery, or other forced labor offenses, rather than at the Federal level, through no fault of the victim of trafficking. This section is intended to eliminate a barrier by which victims of trafficking may be prevented from receiving assistance from the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) because HHS has only considered a victim’s willingness to assist with a Federal law enforcement agency’s investigation or prosecution of a trafficking crime. Moreover, where Federal, State or local law enforcement authorities come into contact with a trafficking victim, but decide not to proceed with a formal investigation or prosecution even though the victim is willing to assist in every reasonable way in the investigation or prosecution, the Committee intends that the victim should be eligible to receive benefits and services if all other requirements set forth in section 107(b)(1)(E) of the TVPA are also satisfied.

Subsection (a)(4) provides trafficking victims a civil right of action in Federal courts for violations of 18 U.S.C. section 1589 (forced labor), 1590 (trafficking with respect to peonage, slavery, involuntary servitude, or forced labor), or 1591 (sex trafficking of children or by force, fraud, or coercion).

Subsection (b) makes amendments to the provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) relating to victims of severe forms of trafficking in persons.

In regulations issued to implement 8 U.S.C. section 1101(a)(15)(T)(i), created by the TVPA, the Immigration and Naturalization Service interpreted the statutory language to mean that only Federal law enforcement agencies investigating or prosecuting acts of trafficking are empowered to issue a law enforcement agency endorsement that a victim of trafficking “has complied with any reasonable request for assistance in the investigation or prosecution of acts of trafficking.” Compliance with such requests for assistance is a requirement for a victim of a severe form of trafficking who has attained 15 years of age to be considered eligible for a “T” visa. Currently, the linchpin of the “T” visa is a law enforcement agency’s interest in investigating and prosecuting a particular case of trafficking and issuing such a law enforcement agency endorsement. There are, however, instances in which Federal law enforcement agents do not investigate or prosecute a particular case, regardless of the merits of the case, and such cases can, and are, investigated and, as appropriate, prosecuted by State or local law enforcement agencies under State anti-trafficking laws or other laws.

Subsection (b)(1) amends 8 U.S.C. section 1101(a)(15)(T)(i) to state explicitly that a victim of trafficking can satisfy the criteria to assist in the investigation or prosecution of acts of trafficking if such victim complies with any reasonable request for assistance from any Federal, State or local law enforcement agency in the investigation or prosecution of acts of trafficking. It is the Committee’s intention to make clear that evidence from a Federal, State or local law enforcement agency shall be sufficient to satisfy the provision that a victim of trafficking comply with any reasonable request for assistance in the investigation or prosecution of acts of trafficking. The Committee stresses that the “T” visa is intended to serve as a tool for assisting law enforcement authorities, but also as a humanitarian tool for victims of trafficking and that every effort should be made to enable a victim of trafficking to benefit from the “T” visa provision when such victim has in good faith cooperated with the investigation and prosecution of acts of trafficking. Indeed, where Federal, State or local law enforcement authorities come into contact with a trafficking victim, but decide not to proceed with a formal investigation or prosecution, the Committee believes that if the victim is ready to comply with a reasonable request for assistance, a law enforcement agency endorsement should be made available to facilitate the victim’s application for a “T” visa.

Moreover, the Committee understands that many State and local law enforcement officials are not aware of the penalties prescribed in the Federal law for trafficking in persons nor of the visa categories available for certain victims. The Committee strongly encourages the Department of Justice's Office of Victims of Crimes to work with the Criminal Section of the Civil Rights Division to expand outreach and education programs for State and local law enforcement personnel with regard to the Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000. This training program should focus, inter alia, on improving State and local law enforcement's ability to identify victims of trafficking and persons engaged in trafficking, on the desirability of referring trafficking cases to Federal officers, and the importance of referring victims of trafficking to appropriate social service providers.

Subsection (b)(1) also increases the age at which a victim of trafficking is required to assist in investigations and prosecutions in order to be eligible for a "T" visa. The age requirement is raised from 15 years of age to 18 years of age. Finally, the list of family members of a victim of trafficking under 21 years of age who are eligible to be considered for derivative "T" visas is amended to include unmarried siblings under 18 years of age of such victim. The Committee considers this amendment necessary so as not to place the parents of a trafficking victim in the position of having to leave behind minor children in their home country in order to be with a child in the United States who has experienced the horror of trafficking in persons.

Subsections (b)(2) and (b)(3) make changes to other provisions of the INA to conform those sections to the changes made by subsection (b)(1).

Subsection 4(c) waives the "public charge" ground for inadmissibility of an alien to the United States. Given the slave-like conditions that trafficking victims experience, they are likely to need public benefits and services in order to integrate into U.S. society. In the Trafficking Victims Protection Act, Congress addressed this need by providing that trafficking victims would have access to public benefits and services to the same extent as persons admitted to the United States as refugees. As a result, however, when applying for a "T" visa victims of trafficking often must seek a waiver of the "public charge" ground by which an alien can be deemed inadmissible to the United States. Applying for such a waiver is costly and burdensome for a victim of trafficking, as well as adding another issue for adjudication by the government in determining eligibility for a "T" visa. Subsection 4(c) exempts trafficking victims from the "public charge" ground for inadmissibility and, thereby, eliminates the need for a victim of trafficking to seek such a waiver.

Subsection 4(c) also provides for the confidentiality of "T" visa applications and creates penalties for unlawful disclosure of information contained in a "T" visa application.

Section 5. Enhancing Prosecutions of Traffickers

Subsection (a)(1) makes a technical correction to the title of 18 U.S.C. section 1591.

Subsection (a)(2) amends 18 U.S.C. section 1591 to state that the jurisdictional basis for prosecuting acts of sex trafficking includes acts of trafficking involving foreign commerce between the United States and foreign countries or occurring in the special maritime or territorial jurisdiction of the United States. It also makes a technical correction to the sentencing provision of section 1591(b) by making the language of the provision correspond fully with the language in the substantive offense provision in section 1591(a).

Subsection (b) adds the trafficking offenses created by P.L. 106–386—specifically 18 U.S.C. section 1589 (relating to forced labor), section 1590 (relating to trafficking with respect to peonage, slavery, involuntary servitude, or forced labor), section 1591 (relating to sex trafficking of children or by force, fraud, or coercion)—to the list of racketeering activities for purposes of the Federal RICO statute. In light of the well-documented involvement of organized crime networks in the trafficking of persons, the Committee would like to see the Department of Justice Organized Crime Division become engaged in the fight against trafficking and to use the full resources available under U.S. law to prosecute acts of trafficking.

Section 6. Enhancing United States Efforts to Combat Trafficking

Subsection (a) requires the Interagency Task Force to report, no later than February 1, 2004 and 2005, to House and Senate oversight committees on the implementation of Federal trafficking in persons programs and initiatives. The Committee believes that having one integrated report on U.S. Government efforts to combat trafficking will give other countries a basis for comparison between their efforts and United States' efforts as well as providing a useful tool for policy makers and anti-trafficking advocates in the United States.

Subsection (b) calls for the Director of the Office to Monitor and Combat Trafficking to be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and to have the rank of Ambassador-at-Large. The Committee intends for the person serving as Director of the Office to Monitor and Combat Trafficking as of the date of the enactment of this act to be permitted to continue to hold such position during the period of time required for such person to have his or her confirmation voted on by the Senate.

Subsection (c) requires the establishment of a Senior Policy Operating Group, consisting of senior officials designated as representatives of the appointed members of the Task Force, which shall coordinate activities and fully share all information of Federal departments and agencies regarding policies, including grants and grant policies, involving trafficking in persons. Regulations regarding the sharing of information among the Senior Policy Operating Group are required not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of the Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2003.

Subsection (d) clarifies the minimum standards for the elimination of trafficking by adding that evidence of convictions and sentences for acts of trafficking and official complicity in acts of trafficking, in addition to evidence of investigations and prosecutions, must be considered when evaluating a country's efforts to eliminate trafficking. It is the Committee's view that the true picture of a government's efforts to prosecute acts of trafficking can only be determined based on an analysis of investigations and prosecutions conducted, as well as convictions and sentences rendered. Investigations and prosecutions are of little significance if convictions and appropriately severe sentences do not follow from them. This section also shifts the burden of proof to foreign governments to provide data on investigations, convictions, prosecutions and sentences for acts of severe forms of trafficking and creates a presumption that a government which does not provide such data to the degree reasonable in light of such government's resources, shall be presumed not to have vigorously engaged in such activities to eliminate trafficking.

Subsection (e) amends section 134(b) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 to state that assistance for foreign police training may be provided under this section notwithstanding section 660 of the FAA.

Subsection (f) creates a new section in the TVPA—"Section 112A Research on Domestic and International Trafficking in Persons"—which requires the President, acting through various departments and agencies, to conduct specialized research in the area of trafficking in persons. The Committee finds that this section is necessary to reinforce the importance of providing grants for research projects in the area of trafficking. The Committee finds that trafficking in persons is an egregious expression of globalization with the capacity to adapt to changing political, social, cultural, economic and legal parameters. Moreover, the Committee believes that many aspects of trafficking remain hidden, substantially increasing the difficulty of combating this terrible human rights abuse. Accordingly, the Committee finds that the causes, manifestations and policy implications of trafficking in persons must be researched, documented and analyzed, and that programs must be evaluated and strategies carefully developed on the basis of sound data.

Section 7. Authorization of Appropriations; Related Matters

This section authorizes funding for fiscal years 2004 and 2005 for programs and activities under the Trafficking Victims Protection Act and makes amendments to that act.

Paragraph (1) authorizes an appropriation in support of the Task Force of $5,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2004 and 2005, a $2,000,000 increase from the fiscal year 2003 authorized appropriation. This subsection also amends Section 113(a) of the TVPA to indicate that the appropriations in support of the Task Force (section 105 of the TVPA) are specifically intended to be used to fund the operations and staffing requirements of the Office to Monitor and Combat Trafficking and the Senior Policy Operating Group. The recommended increase in appropriations is intended to provide for additional staff positions for the Office to Monitor and Combat Trafficking, including country analyst positions to further strengthen the annual reporting process and a position or positions, as needed, to support the Department-led Senior Policy Operating Group to coordinate interagency activities to implement the Trafficking Victims Prevention Act of 2000.

Paragraph (2) authorizes appropriations to the Secretary of Health and Human Services at a level of $15,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2004 and 2005.

Paragraph (3) amends Sec. 113(c) of the TVPA by including an authorization of appropriations provision addressing Bilateral Assistance to Combat Trafficking, wherein appropriations to the Secretary of State for prevention programs are authorized at a level of $10,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2004 and 2005. Paragraph (3) also amends the authorization of appropriations to the Secretary of State for protection programs to a level of $15,000,000 for fiscal year 2003 and $10,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2004 and 2005. Paragraph (3) also amends the authorization of appropriations to the Secretary of State for prosecution and meeting minimum standards for the elimination of trafficking programs to a level of $10,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2004 and 2005. Additionally, subsection (c) is amended by extending the authorization of appropriations for a voluntary contribution to the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE) at its current level of $300,000 for each of the fiscal years 2001 through 2005.

Paragraph (4) authorizes appropriations to the Attorney General of $15,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2004 and 2005. An additional authorization of appropriations in the amount of $250,000 to the President, acting through the Attorney General, for each of fiscal years 2004 and 2005 is made to carry out training activities for law enforcement officers, prosecutors and members of the judiciary regarding trafficking in persons at the International Law Enforcement Academies.

Paragraph (5) extends the authorization of appropriations to the President for foreign victims assistance at its current level of $15,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2003 through 2005 and assistance to foreign countries to meet minimum standards for the elimination of trafficking at its current level of $15,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2003 through 2005. It also authorizes appropriations to the President in the amount of $300,000 for each of the fiscal years 2004 and 2005 for carrying out specialized research in trafficking in persons.

Paragraph (6) extends the authorization of appropriations to the Secretary of Labor at a level of $10,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2004 and 2005.

Paragraph (7) creates a new subsection 113(g) of the TVPA which prohibits the use of funds under the act for any program that promotes, supports, or advocates the legalization or practice of prostitution. The restriction on programs contains the caveat that it shall not be construed to preclude certain types of assistance to victims of trafficking while they are being trafficked or after they are out of the situation that resulted from such victims being trafficked. The Committee recognizes that victims of trafficking may not immediately accept the offer of well-meaning persons to escape a trafficking situation. In the meantime, it is desirable for such persons to be able to provide to the victim of trafficking assistance designed to ameliorate the victim's suffering, to reduce the risks to the victim's health, or to otherwise promote the purposes of the TVPA. The Committee intends to make clear that the provision of such assistance alone shall not be deemed to constitute promoting, supporting or advocating for the legalization or practice of prostitution.

Paragraph (7) further provides that no funds shall be made available for anti-trafficking programs to any organization that has not stated in a grant application and/or grant agreement that the organization does not promote, support, or advocate the legalization or practice of prostitution. In addition, this provision also states that this restriction shall not apply to organizations that provide services to individuals solely after they are no longer engaged in activities that resulted from such victims being trafficked. The Committee intends that the restriction apply where organizations are working with individuals in prostitution while they are in the control of traffickers.
