New ICE Policies on Courthouse Enforcement and VAWA Confidentiality

ICE Courthouse Enforcement Policies and VAWA Confidentiality Protections for Immigrant Crime Victims

Immigration and Customs Enforcement at the U.S. Department of Homeland Security issued a policy on January 10, 2018 limiting civil immigration enforcement at courthouses. For advocates, attorneys, law enforcement, prosecutors, judges and court staff, it is important to note that the new policy’s limits and rules regarding immigration enforcement at courthouses are protections that apply to all immigrants and are in addition to the protections provided to immigrant crime victims by VAWA Confidentiality.

This ICE Courthouse Enforcement Memo confirms (in footnote 2) that immigrant crime victims and witnesses continue to receive VAWA confidentiality protections against courthouse enforcement that are in addition to the limitations on civil courthouse enforcement set out in the January 10, 2018 memo. (See further discussion below)
Read together with VAWA Confidentiality protections for immigrant victims, the policy will result in the following:

- Under both the ICE Courthouse policy and VAWA Confidentiality, supervisory approval at the high levels of the local ICE offices is needed to approve any civil immigration enforcement action that is to take place at a courthouse in a family court or civil court case (including protection orders, custody, divorce, child support, small claims, landlord tenant, etc.)
  - For victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, human trafficking, stalking, and other U visa listed criminal activities once the victim has filed their immigration case the case will appear in a DHS data base of VAWA confidentiality protected cases that the supervisors and enforcement officers can access and will have to check as part of the process of approving civil enforcement at a courthouse in a non-criminal case. (Note VAWA confidentiality protected victims also receive some protection from immigration enforcement in criminal cases). The VAWA confidentiality protected immigration case types that will be flagged for addition protection are:
    - VAWA self-petitions, VAWA cancellation of removal and VAWA suspension of deportation
    - U visas for crime victims
    - T visas for human trafficking victims
    - Battered spouse waivers
    - Work authorization applications filed by abused spouses of A, E(iii), G and H visas.

- Since it is clear from research that when victims begin filing for immigration protections and seek help from lawyers, law enforcement and courts, perpetrators are actively involved in trying to get immigrant victim deported by providing “tips” about the victim to immigration enforcement officials. The protections these policies offer victims are strongest once the victim has filed one of the immigration cases listed above.

- Advocates, attorneys, law enforcement and prosecutors need to screen immigrant victims early and file their VAWA confidentiality protected immigration case as soon as possible so that victims can get the best protections from the policies described in more detail on NIWAP's website here.

We are writing to seek your organization’s support to help a woman from El Salvador who seeks asylum after escaping her abuser, a police officer who is also her relative, after he raped and trafficked her for labor as a child and later stalked, attempted to rape, and threatened to kill her and her family as an adult. We seek your support to overturn the Immigration Judge’s adverse credibility determination, which was based on the Judge’s serious misconceptions about the effects of trafficking and physical, psychological, sexual, and childhood sexual abuse on Respondent’s demeanor and ability to recall information during her testimony. Please join NIWAP and Crowell & Moring LLP in presenting an amicus curiae brief in support of Respondent before the Board of Immigration Appeals. Respondent is being represented by Jones Day LLP.

As both a child and an adult, Respondent suffered sexual, physical, and psychological abuse at the hands of her mother’s cousin, who is now a police officer in El Salvador. The abuser also trafficked Respondent for domestic and commercial labor as a child, imprisoning her in his house. The Immigration Judge, however, applying her own subjective views and erroneous assumptions about how an abuse survivor should behave and the resources available to Respondent in her community, entered an adverse credibility finding against Respondent, and on that sole basis denied relief. Respondent will be in grave danger from her abuser (or his associates) if forced to return to El Salvador.

This amicus brief will:

- Provide social science research demonstrating the neurobiological and developmental consequences of trauma, like childhood sexual abuse;
- Provide social science research demonstrating the neurobiological and developmental effects of childhood human trafficking; and
- Discuss how these two factors affect a childhood sexual abuse and trafficking survivor’s demeanor and ability to recall information during testimony.

The ruling in this case could set precedent establishing that, in assessing an asylum applicant’s credibility under the “totality of the circumstances,” an Immigration Judge must take into account the psychological and developmental effects of trauma, like childhood sexual abuse and human trafficking, on the applicant’s demeanor and ability to recall information during testimony.
If you are interested in signing on to this brief, please send your organization’s name and a short, one-paragraph statement of interest to Belinda Liu at bliu@crowell.com.

The paragraph should describe your organization, its goals/missions, expertise/experience on sexual abuse, human trafficking, or neurobiological development of survivors of such abuse or trafficking, and why this case is important to the people your organization serves.
